1 Information about this factsheet

This factsheet contains information on a range of NHS services in Wales, including:

- information on GP services;
- specialist services which your GP may be able to refer you to;
- specific services for older people over a certain age; and
- NHS screening programmes.

Note: The information given in this factsheet is applicable in Wales. Different rules may apply in England, Northern Ireland and Scotland. Contact Age UK, Age NI and Age Scotland respectively for further information.

2 Structure of the NHS in Wales

The Welsh Government has ultimate responsibility and accountability for all aspects of the NHS in Wales. In terms of the day to day operation of NHS Wales, this is delivered through seven Local Health Boards and three NHS Trusts. Their role is outlined in sections 2.1 and 2.2 below.

Note: Primary and secondary care services

Health services may be referred to as ‘primary’ or ‘secondary’ care services.

Primary care services are delivered by the health professionals you see when you first have a health problem, or seek advice on how to stay healthy – for example, GP practices, district nurses, dental surgeries, pharmacists, opticians, or other businesses providing NHS services.

Secondary care services are usually provided in hospital following an emergency admission via the A&E department, or treatment provided via an out-patient appointment. The ambulance service is also a secondary care service.

2.1 Local Health Boards

There are seven Local Health Boards (LHBs) in Wales. Each LHB is responsible for delivering all NHS healthcare services in the geographical area they cover. The following table lists the LHBs and has further information on the areas of Wales they cover.

Local Health Board	Area covered
Betsi Cadwalader University Health Board	Anglesey, Gwynedd, Conwy, Denbighshire, Flintshire and Wrexham
Hywel Dda Health Board	Carmarthenshire, Ceredigion and Pembrokeshire
Powys Teaching Health Board	Powys
Swansea Bay University Health Board	Swansea, Neath and Port Talbot
Cwm Taf Morgannwg University Health Board	Rhondda Cynon Taf, Bridgend and Merthyr Tydfil
Cardiff & Vale University Health Board	Cardiff and the Vale of Glamorgan
Aneurin Bevan Health Board	Blaenau Gwent, Caerphilly, Monmouthshire, Newport, Torfaen

Links to each LHB web page can be found on the NHS 111 Wales website at:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/localservices/localhealthboards/>

Alternatively, you can telephone 111 for further information.

2.2 NHS Trusts

In addition to the LHBs, there are currently three NHS Trusts with an all-Wales focus:

- Welsh Ambulance Services NHS Trust

Responsible for emergency services (plus they also operate the Non-Emergency Patient Transport Service – see section 7 below).

- Velindre NHS Trust

Provides specialist cancer care and a range of national support services.

- Public Health Wales NHS Trust

Public Health Wales provide and manage a range of public health, health protection and healthcare improvement services (including surveillance, prevention and control of communicable diseases). They make information about protection and improvement of health available to the public and arrange research into these topics.

2.3 Community Health Councils (or from April 2023, the Citizen Voice Body)

Community Health Councils (CHCs) – pre-April 2023

CHCs are a statutory and independent voice whose role is to represent the interests of the public in the health service in their area. They should monitor the quality of NHS services from the point of view of patients, in regard to issues with quality, quantity and access to services.

Additionally, CHCs provide confidential help and advice to people if they have problems with, or complaints about, NHS services – see section 17 below.

The Citizen Voice Body – from April 2023

From April 2023, the Citizen Voice Body (CVB) will replace the role of CHCs. It will, however, also have a wider remit in that it will cover social care services, as well as healthcare.

According to the Welsh Government, the new CVB will:

- “be independent of government, the NHS and local authorities but work with them, and others, to support the continuous improvement of person-centred services”;
- “listen to the views of the public, in all parts of Wales, about health and social care services”;
- “help ensure that people’s lived experiences shape the design and improvement of services – influencing local, regional and national plans and policy”; and
- “help build greater connections between health and social care services”¹.

Further information can be found on the Welsh Government website at:
www.gov.wales/citizen-voice-body-health-and-social-care

3 Getting help when feeling unwell

3.1 Speaking to your GP

Seeing your GP may well be the best option if you are feeling unwell, or are concerned about a particular health condition – also see section 5 below for further information on GP services.

However, there are also other services that, depending on the circumstances, could be an appropriate first point of contact. They may be able to help you directly, or put your mind at rest. These include:

- Your local pharmacist.
- NHS 111 Wales.
- Minor Injury Units.
- Emergency dental services.

Further information on each of these services can be found in the sections immediately below.

¹ ‘Citizen Voice Body for Health and Social Care: What we do’, Welsh Government website: www.gov.wales/citizen-voice-body-health-and-social-care (last accessed 9 January 2023).

3.2 Your local pharmacy service

Pharmacists can give advice on minor ailments, such as colds, aches and pains. They can suggest non-prescription medicines to ease symptoms and help you decide whether you need to see a doctor. As experts on medicines, they can answer questions about prescription items you are taking, or non-prescription remedies that you want to buy.

3.3 NHS 111 Wales

This service can be contacted by telephoning 111. They can advise on a range of health issues, where the situation is not an immediate emergency.

The NHS 111 Wales service is a national, confidential 24-hour telephone advice and information service staffed by nurses and professional advisers. The service is available in English and Welsh. There is also extensive information available on their website.

Note: You can use a search facility on the NHS 111 Wales website at the following link for contact details for your nearest services, including GPs; dental services; opticians; pharmacies; hospitals / A&E departments / minor injury units, plus health, wellbeing and support organisations:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/localservices>

3.4 Minor Injury Units

These are units, often located in hospital grounds, for people with less serious and non-life-threatening injuries that do not need the attention of Accident & Emergency (A&E) staff.

The following are examples of the types of injuries that can be treated at a Minor Injury Unit:

- “Broken bones (fractures) [or] dislocations, sprains and strains”;
- “wounds and minor burns”;
- animal bites;
- “foreign bodies to eyes, ears and nose [or other] non-penetrating eye and ear injuries”; or

- “head or face injuries (if there is no loss or change in level of consciousness)”².

3.5 Emergency dental services

NHS 111 Wales has information on where you can access NHS dental treatment in an emergency or out-of-hours:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/localservices/dentistinformation/>

If you have a usual dentist and need treatment out of hours, you can call the surgery and you should be told how to access urgent care via an answerphone message.

Also see Age Cymru’s Factsheet 5w Dental care: NHS and private treatment in Wales for further information.

4 Serious or life-threatening illness or injury – calling 999 or attending an Accident & Emergency (A&E) department

If someone believes their illness or injury may be very serious or life-threatening, they can seek help immediately by calling 999, or they should go to the nearest A&E department.

A life-threatening or emergency situation would include:

- Loss of consciousness;
- persistent chest pain for 15 minutes or more;
- breathing difficulties;
- pain that cannot be relieved by simple analgesia (i.e. the use of a painkiller);
- acute confused state;
- heavy blood loss;
- medicine overdose; or

² ‘Minor Injury Unit’, NHS 111 Wales website: <https://111.wales.nhs.uk/localservices/minorinjuryunit/> (last accessed 9 January 2023).

● signs that indicate a stroke – these include:

- weakness on one side of your face making your eye or mouth droop;
- inability to lift both arms at the same time; or
- difficulties with speech or understanding what is said.

Remember FAST:

Face

Arms

Speech

Time to call 999 – an acronym to help you recognise the symptoms of a stroke.

5 Information on GP services (including registering, appointments and home visits)

GP practices offer a range of services to prevent and treat illnesses and support people with long-term conditions such as diabetes, heart disease and lung conditions such as asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease or emphysema (also see section 6.7 below for more information about supporting people with long-term conditions).

Nurse consultants, nurse practitioners and specialist nurses frequently work alongside GPs and practice nurses. Their additional training means they can diagnose, treat and manage a variety of health conditions and some can prescribe from a list of medicines.

5.1 Registering with a practice

Everyone living lawfully in the UK and who is ‘ordinarily resident’³ has the right to register with a GP practice. This right is based on residence and not on nationality, payment of tax or national insurance contributions.

³ There is no legal definition of ‘ordinary residence’ but it refers to the place you normally live for the time being, as long as there is some degree of continuity about your stay.

Note: You can find a list and contact details of local practices in your area from the NHS 111 Wales website at the following link (or you can ring them on 111):

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/LocalServices/Default.aspx>

If a practice is accepting new patients, you could call in and collect a practice leaflet, which should include information such as the following:

- the name and qualifications of health professionals and support staff;
- the services provided by the practice, such as special clinics for diabetics or health promotion activities;
- opening hours and how to make an appointment to see or speak to staff;
- criteria for home visits;
- how to request a repeat prescription;
- how to contact a doctor out of hours;
- information for patients with disabilities or special language needs;
- how to comment on, or complain about, services;
- rights and responsibilities of patients and action that may be taken if patients are abusive.

You will need confirmation of your address to be accepted onto a practice list. If you have been registered with another practice, your medical records can be transferred from your previous practice.

Note: Contact NHS 111 Wales if you cannot find a practice to accept you. The Local Health Board has a duty to assign you to a practice if you cannot find one yourself.

NHS 111 Wales should be able to explain the process.

5.2 Registering with a practice if you live in a care home

If you move permanently into a local care home, you may be able to stay registered with your existing GP. However, if you move further away, you may need to register with a new practice.

You should receive the same range of services that you received when living in your own home.

5.3 Home visits

Your practice leaflet should give information on the criteria for home visits.

Giving a full description of your condition when you phone the surgery helps the doctor make an informed decision about the need for a home visit. While having a general policy, decisions should still be made on a case-by-case basis.

If you are ill and have a partner with medical problems that make it difficult for them to be left alone

Let the practice know if you are affected by this issue. You may be able to have a home visit, if arranging for someone else to stay with your partner would be difficult. Your GP can understand your needs better and help you take care of your own health if you let them know you are a carer.

There are also some organisations who specialise in providing advice or support to carers. Contact details can be found in section 19. Age UK's information guide, Advice for carers, may also be helpful.

5.4 Making and attending an appointment

You should generally be able to see a GP within two working days (NHS 111 Wales advise that “most practices aim to see non-urgent cases within two days, although waiting times will vary according to the size of the practice”⁴).

There is usually a system that allows you to see a GP in an emergency if there are no available appointments.

A typical appointment slot is about 10 minutes. If you have complex issues to discuss you may like to ask if you can have a double appointment. You could think about the following prior to attending your appointment:

- Do you need to remind your GP if you have hearing difficulties, need information in large print, or if Welsh or English is not your first language.

⁴ ‘GPs - Frequently Asked Questions’, NHS 111 Wales website: <https://111.wales.nhs.uk/localservices/gpfaq/> (last accessed 10 January 2023).

- You may like to make notes beforehand, so you have a reminder of what you want to tell the doctor or ask about.
- If you are worried about new symptoms, try to remember when you first noticed them. Does there seem to be a pattern or certain times when they are better or worse? Could they be linked to any change in medication?
- Don't leave anything out, thinking it's minor or trivial. GPs can only work with what you tell them, so give them sufficient information for them to grasp the whole picture and decide what's significant.
- If you don't understand the answer to your questions or some of the words used, ask for an explanation or for the answer to be written down so you can read it again later.
- If you are going to hear the results of tests and discuss treatment, you may want to ask whether there is more than one treatment, what the pros and cons of each are and whether there are any common side effects.

5.5 Seeking a second opinion

If, following a consultation and discussion with your GP, you have doubts about a diagnosis or suggested treatment, you can ask your GP to refer you for a second opinion. Although you have no legal right to a second opinion, GPs rarely refuse unless there is sufficient reason and they do not think it necessary. The referral may be to another GP in your practice or a consultant.

If your case is complicated or diagnosis unclear, your GP or consultant may want a second opinion to ensure all possible treatment options are explored.

5.6 Out-of-hours services

Each Local Health Board in Wales is responsible for providing an out-of-hours service that meets Welsh Government standards.

Out-of-hours usually means from 6.30pm to 8am on weekdays, all day Saturday and Sunday, and bank holidays.

If you call your practice during these times, you will be given details of the out-of-hours service. This may involve ringing another number. You could also call NHS 111 Wales who will be able to suggest the most appropriate option for you.

5.7 Changing your practice

You do not need to tell your practice if you want to change, or have found another practice to accept you. However, you may, as a courtesy, wish to tell them. Once you are accepted by another practice, your medical records will be transferred.

5.8 GP services when you are resident somewhere temporarily

If you are to live away from your usual address for up to three months, you can apply to be a 'temporary' resident at a local practice. If their list is not full they are likely to accept you. If you become ill while staying with friends, approach their local practice to see if they are willing to treat you. In other circumstances call NHS 111 Wales who will recommend the most appropriate action to take.

6 Services to which your GP may refer you

6.1 Referral to an NHS consultant or other specialist medical professional

Following an appointment with your GP, they may decide that you need to see a specialist consultant or other professional for further exploration of your issue, including tests to make a diagnosis and subsequent treatment. Your GP will give you information on how the referral will proceed.

Examples of specialists include Cardiologists (for heart disease); Oncologists (for the treatment of cancer); or Rheumatologists (treatment of conditions affecting joints, bones and muscles).

6.2 NHS help with mental health needs

If you have been experiencing periods of anxiety, low mood, poor sleep or a loss of interest in things you used to enjoy, and this has been going on for a month or more, it is important to speak to your GP. Mental health issues are just as important as physical illnesses and like physical illnesses, may respond better when diagnosed and treated early. A range of treatments can help, depending on the severity of your symptoms.

'Talking treatments', such as counselling can help you understand and manage your feelings. For some people, certain types of medication may help, or there may be 'self help' groups or activities available. Potentially a combination of different things might help; you can speak to your GP about the various options.

You may also wish to read Age UK's information guide 56 Your mind matters: Thinking about your mental health.

6.3 NHS help with hearing difficulties

Visit your GP if hearing difficulties are causing you practical problems. If your GP cannot find a medical reason, such as build up of wax or an ear infection, you can be referred for a specialist hearing test. If the test indicates a hearing aid in one or both ears would be helpful, staff will discuss options with you. NHS hearing aids are provided on a long-term loan basis; batteries are supplied free of charge.

Further information

The charity, Royal National Institute for Deaf People (RNID), can provide information on hearing aids (both those available on the NHS and ones which can be purchased privately). You can also check your hearing using their confidential online or telephone hearing check – see section 19 for contact details.

6.4 NHS chiropody / podiatry

Chiropodists (also known as podiatrists) help people who have problems with their lower leg or feet.

To receive chiropody as an NHS patient, you must meet local eligibility criteria. This usually means you must have a medical foot problem or health condition – such as diabetes, arthritis and circulatory problems – that puts you at risk of foot-related problems.

Your GP should be able to tell you about the local eligibility criteria for NHS chiropody. NHS 111 Wales may also be able to provide this information – see section 19 below for contact details.

Note: Nail cutting

Routine care such as nail cutting is unlikely to be offered as NHS treatment, but may be available from local voluntary organisations. For example, your local Age Cymru may have a nail cutting service, or be able to advise you of the contact details of another organisation that can help. See section 19 for details on how to contact your local Age Cymru.

6.5 NHS physiotherapy services

Physiotherapists arrange treatment and rehabilitation following injury or disability affecting, for example, your joints, ligaments or muscles (i.e. musculoskeletal conditions that could be as a result of trauma caused by a fall, or perhaps a specific condition such as arthritis).

They may be members of a multi-disciplinary team that offers rehabilitation support in a number of areas – for example, for someone who has had a stroke.

6.6 NHS speech and language therapists

These professionals assist people with speech and communication. They can also help with eating and swallowing difficulties that can occur following a stroke, or in people with dementia.

See section 19 below for contact details for the Stroke Association and the Alzheimer's Society.

6.7 NHS support for people with long-term conditions

Millions of people have one or more 'long-term', chronic, condition such as diabetes, arthritis, heart disease, Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disorder (COPD), or other lung diseases. These are conditions that cannot be cured, but can be managed with the help of medication and other treatment.

Your GP practice should be keen to help you better understand and manage your own care. This may include drawing up a care plan to help you manage your condition on a day-to-day basis and recognise symptoms that you should report to your GP.

Information, practical support and regular reviews with a health professional can help you better understand and manage your own care.

6.8 NHS falls prevention services

If you have a fall, or start to feel unsteady, you should discuss this with your GP, even if you have not suffered any injury as a result and feel fine otherwise. Your GP may want to check your medication or commission tests to see if there is any medical reason to explain it. With your permission, your GP can also refer you to the local falls prevention service for a falls risk assessment. This could include checking your eyesight, checking your home for potential hazards and/or attending an exercise class to improve your strength and balance.

Age UK's information guide, Staying steady: How to reduce your risk of falling, may also be helpful to you.

6.9 NHS continence services

These services are staffed by specialist nurses and physiotherapists. They can assess your symptoms, identify the cause, and discuss what treatment or exercises may help tackle your continence problems.

If you wish, you may be able to refer yourself directly to your local NHS continence service for an assessment, without seeing your GP first.

An organisation called the Bladder and Bowel Community may also be helpful to you – see section 19 below for contact details.

Availability of continence products from the NHS

You may be able to get continence products on the NHS, such as incontinence pads or bedding, but different Local Health Boards may have different qualifying criteria.

In order to receive the products, you would need to be assessed by the NHS continence service.

If you are not eligible for continence products on the NHS

You can buy many continence products in pharmacies and supermarkets, though it may be a good idea to discuss their suitability with your GP or continence services staff before using them permanently.

The Bladder and Bowel Community, mentioned above, may also be able to offer further advice, or there is an impartial, not for profit, website called the Continence Product Advisor who could be a useful source of information – see section 19 below for contact details.

Further information

NHS 111 Wales has further information on their website at:

- Urinary incontinence –

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/encyclopaedia/i/article/incontinence,urinary>

- Bowel incontinence –

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/Encyclopaedia/i/article/incontinence,bowel>

Also, see Age UK's information guide, Bladder and bowel problems.

6.10 Sexual Health services

You can access these services by visiting your GP, at some pharmacies or a sexual health clinic. If you are unsure which service is right for you, you can contact NHS 111 Wales for further guidance.

You do not have to use a local clinic, but you may wish to check what services are provided at your chosen service before attending. The service is confidential and will not be shared with anyone outside of the clinic without your permission.

Further information can be found on the NHS 111 Wales website at:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/lifestylewellbeing/sexualhealth>

6.11 Marie Curie and Macmillan nurses

These nurses support people with cancer, as well as their families, to manage the physical and emotional aspects of their illness, particularly as people approach the end of their life. Also see section 13 for more information on end of life care and section 19 for contact details for Marie Curie and Macmillan Cancer Support.

6.12 GP referral to a memory clinic and/or specialists where someone may have dementia

Note: Dementia is a term used to describe a collection of symptoms that occur when certain diseases or conditions affect the brain. These symptoms include: short-term memory problems; mood changes and problems with thinking, speech and communication.

There are many conditions that cause dementia. Alzheimer's disease is the most common cause, but others include vascular dementia and frontotemporal dementia.

Following an initial appointment with your GP, they may decide to refer you to a memory clinic so a more detailed assessment can be carried out. This may include physical examinations, memory tests and possibly a brain scan.

Specialists you might see include:

- “a psychiatrist (usually called an old age psychiatrist);
- an elderly care physician (sometimes called a geriatrician);
- a neurologist (an expert in treating conditions that affect the brain and nervous system)”⁵.

The following Age UK information guides may also be helpful:

6.13 Services that may be provided by the local authority social services department

Social services assistance

Following a visit to your GP, or after hospital treatment, you may be referred to the local authority social services department for social care services, for example:

- personal care at home;
- meals on wheels;
- adaptations to the home for someone with a disability; or
- provision of care home accommodation.

Social services departments can carry out care needs assessments to see what people with care or support needs require.

For further information on these topics, see Age Cymru's factsheets on social care, including:

- 41w – Social care assessments for older people with care needs in Wales;
- 6w – Finding help at home in Wales;
- 29w – Finding care home accommodation in Wales.

Occupational therapists (OTs)

OTs advise on home modifications or equipment that could make living at home easier. You can be referred to an OT by your GP or social services. They are often members of a multi-disciplinary team that can assess people's care needs (and, indeed, they may be part of the team that carries out a social services care needs assessment, as discussed above).

Age Cymru's Factsheet 41w (see above) can provide further information on OTs in the wider context of care needs assessments and social services provision. Also, see Factsheet 42w Obtaining disability equipment and home adaptations in Wales.

6.14 Priority NHS services for military veterans

If you are a veteran, you may wish to make health and social care workers aware of this, as it may enable them to better tailor services to your needs, as well as referring you to relevant dedicated or specialist services.

In situations where a “referring GP and consultant agree that [a] patient’s condition is related to their military service they have been asked to prioritise veterans over other patients with the same level of clinical need” (though “veterans will not be given priority over other patients with more urgent clinical needs”)⁶.

Note: “Veterans are former members of the Royal Navy, Army, Royal Marines, Royal Air Force, or the Merchant Navy and fishermen who served in a vessel that supported a military operation by HM Forces”. This includes “Regulars, Reservists and those who did National Service”⁷.

7 The Non-Emergency Patient Transport Service

The Non-Emergency Patient Transport Service (NEPTS) is operated by the Welsh Ambulance Services NHS Trust. The service provides non-emergency transport to people who are unable, for medical reasons, to make their own way to hospital appointments or treatment centres.

When you contact NEPTS they will ask you a number of questions in order to determine whether you are eligible for the service – see section 19 for contact details.

Alternatively, further information – including an online eligibility checker – can be found on the NEPTS website at:

www.ambulance.wales.nhs.uk/en/407

⁶ Press release: Military veterans urged to sign up for priority NHS treatment in Wales, 29 June 2019, Welsh Government website: www.gov.wales/military-veterans-urged-sign-priority-nhs-treatment-wales (last accessed 11 January 2023).

8 Hospital stays and NHS services following hospital discharge

The following information resources cover topics such as the questions to ask prior to a hospital admission – be it planned or unplanned (i.e. an emergency admission) – and the procedure that should then be followed when you are ready to leave hospital:

- Age Cymru's Factsheet 37w Hospital discharge arrangements for older people in Wales;
- Age UK information guide 7 Your hospital stay.

As detailed in the above resources, if you require temporary or ongoing services following a hospital stay, some of these may fall within the remit of the local authority social services department, rather than the NHS.

9 NHS continuing healthcare (NHS CHC) – for people with high level, complex, health needs

NHS CHC is a package of care arranged and funded solely by the NHS to meet physical and/or mental health needs that have arisen because of disability, accident or illness. It can be provided in any setting including, but not limited to, a care home, a hospice or your own home.

Eligibility is decided via a full assessment where the 'nature', 'intensity', 'complexity' or 'unpredictability' of someone's health needs mean that they have to be actively managed by the NHS.

Eligibility decisions for NHS CHC rest on whether your need for care is primarily due to your health needs – often referred to as having a 'primary health need' (as opposed to a need for care due primarily to social care needs that fall within the remit of social services departments, rather than the health service).

This topic is covered in detail in Age Cymru's Factsheet 20w NHS continuing healthcare and NHS-funded nursing care in Wales.

10 NHS treatment waiting time targets

NHS Wales publishes information on maximum waiting times – see below. It should be noted that the targets are based on “Referral to Treatment times” – this is the total time from first being referred “by a GP or other medical practitioner for hospital treatment in the NHS in Wales and includes time spent waiting for outpatient appointments, diagnostic tests, therapy services and inpatient or day-case admissions”.

“If a GP, dentist, optician or other clinician refers you for hospital treatment, the clock [on your waiting time] starts when your referral letter is received by the hospital”⁸.

Note: Due to pressures caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, waiting times in general have increased significantly, so more patients are waiting longer than the target times.

Further information can also be found on the NHS 111 Wales website at:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/encyclopaedia/w/article/waitingtimes>

10.1 General targets

- 95% of patients referred should “start their treatment within 26 weeks”.
- “All patients whose care is too complex to be undertaken within 26 weeks [should] receive their definitive treatment within [a] maximum of 36 weeks”⁹.

10.2 Cancer treatment targets

- “75% of patients...referred as suspected of having cancer should start definitive treatment within 62 days from point of suspicion”¹⁰.

⁸ ‘Waiting times’, NHS 111 Wales website: <https://111.wales.nhs.uk/encyclopaedia/w/article/waitingtimes> (last accessed 11 January 2023).

⁹ Ibid

¹⁰ Ibid

10.3 Mental health treatment targets

- “People referred for a mental health assessment should be seen within 28 days of receipt of referral. Following assessment, those who need treatment should start to receive it within 56 days”¹¹.

10.4 Postponement of a planned operation

If you were scheduled to have an operation, but it is postponed by the hospital “on more than one occasion with less than eight days notice for a reason that has nothing to do with your medical condition, then you should receive your operation within 14 days, or at your earliest convenience”¹².

10.5 Waiting time exceptions

The maximum waiting times targets, outlined above, have some exceptions. For example, this could include:

- where “delaying the start of your treatment is in your best clinical interests, for example where stopping smoking or losing weight is likely to improve the outcome of the treatment”;
- where “it is clinically appropriate for your condition to be actively monitored in secondary care without clinical intervention or diagnostic procedures at that stage”;
- “if you fail to attend appointments that you had chosen from a set of reasonable options”¹³, or
- in the case of organ transplants, where long waits may occur due to a lack of suitable organs.

10.6 If you have waited longer than the target times

You could contact either the relevant department in the hospital to which you’ve been referred, or your Local Health Board.

If you are unhappy with the response, you could use the NHS Wales complaints procedure – there is further information on this in Age Cymru’s Factsheet 66w Resolving problems and making a complaint about NHS care in Wales.

11 Services at your local pharmacy

Pharmacists are experts on medicines. They can help if you are having difficulty taking prescribed or over-the-counter medicines, or have questions about them. Speak to your pharmacist if:

- you find labels hard to read;
- the usual packaging hard to open;
- tablets are difficult to swallow; or
- you take many tablets at different times of the day and find it difficult to take them as prescribed.

Your pharmacist may offer a simple solution, or be able to decide if you are eligible for special help because of a disability.

In some areas the following services may be available from your local pharmacy:

- Prescription collection service – at your request, the pharmacy collects a repeat prescription from your GP practice to save you the journey.
- Home delivery service – this may be combined with the above service and allows prescription medicines to be delivered to you.

Community Pharmacy Discharge Medicine Service

This service is for people returning to their own home after a stay in hospital or other care setting and aims to ensure that they continue to receive their correct medicines during this transition. In the past, a discharge advice letter was sent to the patient and their GP only. In some instances delays in these letters getting to GPs resulted in new prescriptions being issued which contained incorrect medicines.

The service aims to minimise re-admittance to hospital or A&E visits caused by medication errors, as well as medicine waste.

Medicine Use Review (MUR)

Your pharmacist may invite you for a MUR, or you can ask for one if you take a number of medicines regularly. It offers you a chance to raise any problems you have taking several medicines, discuss any unwanted side effects you think they may be causing and get advice on how to take them in the best way. This review helps you to make sure you are getting the most benefit from the medicines you take.

If you use non-prescription medicines as well, take them with you so the pharmacist gets a complete picture.

Your GP should also regularly review the medication you take, to ensure you take the most appropriate medicines at the most appropriate dose.

Health promotion/lifestyle advice

Many local pharmacies offer cholesterol testing, blood pressure checking and advice to help you give up smoking.

12 Reporting unwanted side effects from medication – the ‘Yellow Card scheme’

The Yellow Card Scheme is administered by the Medicines & Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA). It allows health professionals and patients to report:

- Unwanted side effects from prescription or non-prescription medicines or herbal remedies.
- Defective medicines of an unacceptable quality.
- Counterfeit or fake medicines.
- Problems with medical devices, such as surgical instruments and syringes.

A Yellow Card form is available in most pharmacies or your GP surgery. Alternatively, you can call the Yellow Card hotline, or complete a form online – see section 19 for contact details.

13 Palliative care (end of life care)

End of life care is provided through palliative care services. Palliative care aims to improve the quality of life of patients, their families or informal carers who are facing issues associated with life limiting illness. Rather than the length of life, the focus should be on the quality of life. As such, services focus on relieving and preventing suffering, both in terms of the prevention or relief of physical pain, but also emotional, spiritual, or other social concerns of the patient that can be addressed.

Depending on people's preferences, the palliative care service should make it easier for them to die in their own home, rather than being admitted to hospital. Services can potentially be delivered in a range of settings – for example, in addition to your own home or hospital, a hospice, care home, or in the local community at day centres may be appropriate.

Palliative care services may involve a wide range of professionals, including doctors, nurses, pharmacists, social workers, psychologists and chaplains.

If you are diagnosed with an advanced, progressive, incurable illness, the NHS team caring for you should offer the opportunity to discuss your future care. Here you could discuss treatment options and express your thoughts, concerns, wishes and preferences, including where you would like to be cared for. If you wish, this discussion can include your family or someone else you nominate. This information should be recorded in your care plan, so that every service caring for you is aware of your preferences.

The NHS Wales website has a range of information on palliative care at:

<https://collaborative.nhs.wales/programmes/national-palliative-and-end-of-life-care-programme>

Age UK's information guide, Thinking about end of life, may also be helpful.

Note: End of life and NHS continuing healthcare (NHS CHC)

In circumstances where someone has a rapidly deteriorating condition and may be approaching the end of life, urgent consideration of CHC eligibility may be appropriate – see Age Cymru's Factsheet 20w NHS continuing healthcare and NHS-funded nursing care in Wales for further information.

14 Specific NHS services for older people

14.1 Free NHS services once you reach the age of 60

The following services are free when you reach the age of 60, regardless of your income or savings:

- NHS-funded sight tests¹⁴.
- NHS dental check-ups (also known as dental ‘examinations’). However, note that you may still have to pay for subsequent dental treatment (i.e. things like fillings or crowns) that is identified as needed during the free check-up, unless you qualify for help with treatment charges (see Age Cymru’s Factsheet 61w Help with NHS health costs in Wales for further information).

14.2 Annual seasonal flu (influenza) jabs and COVID-19 booster vaccines

Both of these vaccine programmes are free for eligible people – see Age Cymru’s Factsheet 61w *Help with NHS health costs in Wales for further information on who will qualify.

14.3 Over-65s – free jab against pneumonia

The pneumococcal vaccination provides protection against pneumococcal infections: these include pneumonia, septicaemia and bacterial meningitis. It is offered to people aged 65 and over and will be available through your GP practice. It is not necessary to have this jab every year and most people will have it once only.

¹⁴ An NHS sight test checks your vision and can pick up early signs of eye conditions such as glaucoma. An annual sight test is recommended once you reach the age of 70. For younger adults, the recommendation is every two years or as advised by your optician. If you have difficulty visiting the optician because of illness or disability you can have a sight test at home. Not all opticians offer this service, so call NHS 111 Wales for a list of opticians in your area offering home visits – see section 19 below for contact details.

14.4 Shingles vaccination

There is a shingles vaccination for older people in Wales aged 70 to 79. You can contact your GP surgery for further information, or view the NHS 111 Wales website at:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/livewell/vaccinations/Shinglesvacwho>

15 NHS screening for cancer and other conditions

15.1 NHS breast screening programme

This programme is coordinated by Breast Test Wales (see section 19 for contact details). They aim to offer screening every three years. Breast Test Wales provide the following information on who should be screened:

- All women aged 50 or over are eligible for breast screening.
- Women aged between 50 and 70 are invited automatically.
- Women aged over 70 can request an appointment every three years. To arrange this they will need to contact the local Breast Test Wales screening centre.

Note: Women will not necessarily get their invitation in the year that they turn 50; however, as long as they are registered with a GP, they will definitely be invited for a screening before their 53rd birthday. It is important that women ensure that their GP has their correct address on file, as Breast Test Wales identify those to invite from GP lists.

Further information can be found on the Breast Test Wales website:

<https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/screening/breast-screening>

15.2 NHS cervical screening programme

Cervical screening (a smear test) checks the health of your cervix and is designed to help prevent cancer. All women between certain ages – generally 25-64 – are eligible, though there are exceptions based on individual circumstances. The Cervical Screening Wales website has further information on this:

<https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/cervical-screening-wales/what-is-cervical-screening>

You should receive a letter in the post inviting you to make an appointment (though you'll need to make sure you are registered with a GP in order to receive the automatic invitation).

15.3 NHS bowel cancer screening

An NHS national bowel screening programme is run by Bowel Screening Wales. They invite all men and women aged between 55 and 74 for bowel screening every two years.

As long as you are registered with a GP surgery (and they have your correct address on record), you will automatically be sent an invitation for screening through the post. If you are not registered with a GP, but would like to take part in the screening programme, contact Bowel Screening Wales on the number listed in section 19 below.

If you are over 74 and concerned about bowel cancer, you should contact your GP. Likewise, “if you have any bowel symptoms or are worried about your family history of bowel cancer do not wait for your bowel screening test kit. It is important that you speak to your doctor”¹⁵.

Further information on the bowel screening programme can be found at:

<https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/screening/bowel-screening>

15.4 Prostate cancer

There are no plans at present to screen men to detect prostate cancer (in Wales, or elsewhere in the UK). This is “because it has not been proven that the benefits would outweigh the risks”. For example, the screening test can be “unreliable and can suggest prostate cancer when no cancer exists (a false-positive result)” and vice versa.

¹⁵ ‘Your invitation’, Bowel Screening Wales website: <https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/screening/bowel-screening/about-bowel-screening/your-invitation/> (last accessed 13 January 2023).

Rather than a national screening programme, “there is an informed choice programme on prostate cancer risk management, for healthy men aged 50 or over who ask their GP about [prostate-specific antigen] PSA testing. It aims to give men good information on the pros and cons of a PSA test. If you’re a man aged 50 or over and decide to have your PSA levels tested after talking to your GP, they can arrange for it to be carried out free on the NHS. If results show you have a raised level of PSA, your GP may suggest further tests”¹⁶.

Further information can be found on the NHS 111 Wales website at:

<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/encyclopaedia/c/article/canceroftheprostate>

15.5 Diabetic Eye Screening Wales

If you have diabetes, high blood sugar can damage the back of the eye (retina), which can cause serious and permanent sight loss. Early changes to your retina can often go unnoticed, so the NHS invite people with diabetes to come for eye screening. Everyone aged 12 or over who has diabetes and is registered with a GP should be invited for the screening, which should take place annually. You should speak to your GP if you have not received an invite.

Further information can be found at:

<https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/screening/diabetic-eye-screening-wales>

15.6 Abdominal aortic aneurysm (AAA) screening

AAA screening looks for a swelling (aneurysm) of the aorta in the abdomen. If this happens there is a risk that the aorta may split or tear (rupture) which can be extremely serious. If an AAA is found you will be offered treatment, or monitoring of the condition.

AAA screening is currently offered to men aged 65 (the screening programme is offered to men only, as they are six times more likely to have an AAA than women).

¹⁶ ‘Cancer of the prostate’, NHS 111 Wales website:
<https://111.wales.nhs.uk/encyclopaedia/c/article/canceroftheprostate#Screening> (last accessed 13 January 2023).

You will be invited for a ultrasound screening test if you are registered with a GP (if not, contact the Wales Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm Screening Programme).

You may also wish to contact them, or your GP, if:

- you are already over 65 and have never had an AAA screening scan; or
- you are a younger man – or a woman of any age – with a close family history of AAA.

Further information can be found on the NHS Wales website at:

<https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/screening/abdominal-aortic-aneurysm-screening>

15.7 Screening programmes and people who are trans (transgender) or non-binary

As indicated in the sections above, many screening programmes are based on age and/or gender. People will be invited for screening, based on the gender that they are registered under with their GP.

Based on the gender on record with the GP, some people may be automatically invited for screening that they do not need or, conversely, potentially miss out on an automatic invite for screening that could be important (for example, where risk of certain conditions may depend on the sex someone was assigned at birth).

NHS Wales advise that if you think you should have been invited for a screening test you should contact your GP.

There is also further information on the screening programmes, specific to trans (transgender) or non-binary people, on the NHS Wales website at:

<https://phw.nhs.wales/services-and-teams/screening/information-for-people-who-are-transgender-or-non-binary>

16 Help with health costs and the NHS Low Income Scheme

Most NHS services and treatment are free, including NHS prescriptions in Wales. However, services such as NHS dental treatment and the purchase of glasses or contact lenses after an NHS sight test are not (and attract a charge). Certain people, such as those on a low income, may be eligible for help with these costs – either the full cost, or part of the cost. Age Cymru’s Factsheet 61w Help with NHS health costs in Wales has further information on this topic.

17 Resolving problems with NHS care or services – the NHS Wales complaints procedure

See Age Cymru’s Factsheet 66w Resolving problems and making a complaint about NHS care in Wales for in-depth information on making a complaint to the NHS.

18 Age discrimination in health services and the Equality Act 2010

The Equality Act 2010 (‘the Act’) protects you from being unfairly discriminated against. It applies to anyone over the age of 18 and to all public services. It means it is unlawful for the NHS – without good and sufficient reason – to provide inferior services, or refuse to provide services at all, solely because of a ‘protected characteristic’ defined by the Act.

Note: The Equality Act 2010 ‘protected characteristics’ are age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion and belief, sex, and sexual orientation.

Under the Act, age discrimination will mean being treated unfairly or differently because of your age. The law only intends to prevent harmful or unjustifiable use of age, including a ‘stereotypical view’ of a particular age group. It does not intend to prevent differential treatment where there is ‘objective justification’ – for example, cancer screening or flu vaccination programmes are instances where objective justification can allow for services to be geared towards a certain gender or age ranges.

Situations where the Act could apply, include when a GP, consultant or other health professional discusses treatment options with you or makes a 'best interests' decision about treatment or care. Your age can play a part here, but staff should take account of your 'biological' age, not simply your 'chronological' age (your age in years).

If there are treatments for conditions such as cancer that are less successful or less well tolerated as people get older, the doctor should discuss this openly when explaining treatment options.

You can often clarify and resolve a situation by discussing it with staff concerned but, if necessary, the law means that you can take NHS organisations, clinicians or managers to court on grounds of age discrimination.

You could contact the Equality Advisory & Support Service helpline if you think you have been discriminated against – see section 19 below for contact details. Age UK's Factsheet 79 Equality, discrimination and the Public Sector Equality Duty also has further information.

20.3 How you can help

All the information and advice we provide is free and completely impartial. In many cases our timely intervention can be life changing. We are an ageing population and more people than ever are coming to us for support. You can help us be there for those that need us most.

Make a donation

No matter how small or large, donations make a massive difference and help us continue our important work.

Call: 029 2043 1555

Visit: www.agecymru.org.uk/donate

Every donation we receive helps us be there for someone when they need us.

- £10 helps towards a fully trained expert advice worker to respond to queries from people who need the support of our information and advice service.
- £20 helps towards the cost of us producing free information guides and factsheets that provide useful advice on issues affecting people over 50.

Fundraise

Whether it is having a bake sale, running a marathon or knitting small hats for the Big Knit, there are so many ways to raise vital funds to support our work.
